

RABQSA International Introduces Certification Designed for Certification Auditors

Milwaukee, Sydney and Athens - RABQSA International (RABQSA) has today announced the release of a new auditor certification scheme designed specifically for auditors engaged by accredited management system certification bodies.

The scheme has been designed with the cooperation of select certification bodies from around the world, and provides for integrated certification, i.e. QMS and EMS, internal skill examination, and additional knowledge-based service competencies requested by the certification community. The scheme is designed to provide enhanced recognition of the auditor's ability to engage in the certification audit process and add tangible value to client's activities.

"RABQSA, in developing this scheme in co-operation with major accredited certification bodies, is encouraged that competency-based personnel certification is the becoming the bedrock of an effective third party system" said Michael Carmody, CEO RABQSA. "The scheme demonstrates the innovation, cost effectiveness and flexibility certification bodies have been seeking", says Carmody.

The establishment of an RABQSA certification auditor scheme, specifically designed for the accredited certification community, will complement RABQSA's existing international profile around the world.
