

RABQSA Membership Approved to the IAAR

Milwaukee, USA: RABQSA International, an accredited personnel and training certification body with principal offices in Sydney, Milwaukee and Athens, has been granted membership of the International Association of Accredited Registrars (IAAR).

The IAAR is an association of accredited management system registrars operating in North America. The organization actively promotes the establishment and maintenance of effective management systems in North American companies through accredited registration.

The IAAR promotes management system assessment by acting as a resource for organizations developing their own management assessment based programs. The IAAR works with industry groups, government agencies and other organizations to provide guidance in the appropriate use of international standards, the accreditation process and reliance on accredited registrars.

The IAAR is utilized by such companies as the Chrysler Corporation, General Motors and Ford Motor Company to develop the ISO 9000-based management system requirements known as QS-9000 for auto industry suppliers.

"RABQSA values the recognition and status the IAAR provides in North America and within the international conformity assessment industry, stated Mr Michael Carmody, President and CEO RABQSA International. "Along with our long-term membership of the Australasian Association of Certification Bodies (AACB), membership of the IAAR will provide a very effective medium for RABQSA' contribution to the future value and relevance of our industry", said Carmody.
