

RABQSA launches new e Momentum Site

Athens, Milwaukee, Seoul, Sydney; RABQSA International Inc. (RABQSA) is pleased to announce the launch of our new e momentum Blog Site. This exciting new and interactive communication medium will replace the current on-line magazine Emomentum.

“...the new e momentum Blog will offer our customers and advertisers the cutting edge in information access,” says Kathy Newman RABQSA Coordinator for Communications and Customer Services. “instant access to informative articles, items of interest and news releases, will enhance our customer experience with RABQSA” says Ms Newman.

The word Blog is derived from web + log. Blogs became well known during the American 2004 election process, but have been around since at least 1999. Blogs started out as simple online diaries comprised primarily of text entries sorted by date - newest to oldest. Gradually they morphed into full fledged web sites containing images and video together with written information
